PREFACE

This document is one of a series which presents the first edition of the Australian Standard Classification of Occupations (ASCO). This new classification is the product of an extensive work programme undertaken by a joint project team from the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) and the then Department of Employment and Industrial Relations (DEIR), now the Department of Employment, Education and Training (DEET).

In the 1970s it became clear that the classifications of occupations in use in Australia during that time suffered from a number of deficiencies which led to widespread criticism, as for example in the Norgard Report on Review of the Commonwealth Employment Service (June 1973) and the Crawford Report on Structural Adjustment (March 1979). Against this background, DEIR and the ABS established a joint project team in 1978 to develop a new standard classification of occupations.

Research into the needs of the user community and consideration of relevant conceptual issues led to the conclusion that the structure of the new classification should be based on 'kind of work', defined in terms of skill level and skill specialisation. ASCO identifies 1079 occupations covering all jobs in the Australian economy. These occupations were identified and described on the basis of an extensive field work programme involving on-the-job observation, and on the basis of advice from trade unions, employer organisations and industry associations.

ASCO is now used for occupation coding in all ABS collections. The first major collections to use ASCO were the Labour Force Survey, Survey of Employee Earnings and Hours and the 1986 Census of Population and Housing. Outside of the ABS, ASCO is used by a great number of Commonwealth and State departments and agencies, and private organisations.

The background work leading to this important new classification would not have been possible without the co-operation and assistance of many organisations and individuals. Those who have assisted are too numerous by far to list individually, and the ABS and DEET would like to express appreciation for their co-operation and assistance.

This publication will be revised periodically to reflect changes in the tasks performed in different occupations, the evolution of new occupations and the disappearance of others. It is hoped that feedback from the user community will be a significant source of information to enable the ASCO Occupation Definitions to continue to reflect the composition of jobs in the Australian economy.

THE PURPOSE OF THIS PUBLICATION

This publication is primarily designed to assist coders in resolving problems arising in the course of coding occupation data to the occupation level of ASCO. Hence, it should be used in conjunction with either the ASCO Expert Coding System: Occupation Level (ABS Cat. No. 1226.0) or the ASCO Manual Coding System: Occupation Level (ABS Cat. No. 1227.0 - expected release). It is particularly useful in finding the correct ASCO definitions for an occupation to determine the appropriate ASCO code, when no title or only an inadequate title (eg. Public Servant, Ford Worker) is available.

The Construction of the Keyword Index

This publication contains an index of selected words used in the Occupation Definitions as published in ASCO Occupation Definitions (ABS Cat. No. 1223.0). The Occupation Definitions contain information under the following headings:

- OCCUPATION CODE, OCCUPATION TITLE: These are specified in the heading, and may be followed by a list of alternative titles.
- LEAD STATEMENT: This specifies the boundary of the occupation in terms of broadly stated tasks.
- SKILL LEVEL: This specifies the entry requirements for the occupation expressed in terms of formal education, previous experience and on-the-job training. Special requirements, such as registration/licensing are also indicated under this heading.
- TASKS: This list specifies the primary tasks, together with the main secondary tasks, performed in the occupation. Some of these secondary tasks may be optional.
- SPECIALISATIONS (optional): This list specifies one or more specialisation titles of the occupation. Each title may be optionally accompanied by a list of tasks performed in the specialisation.
- RELATED OCCUPATIONS (optional): This list specifies one or more related occupations which are classified to other unit groups.

The keywords were selected from the lead statement, the task descriptions of the principal title and each of the specialisation titles. Keywords, which have to be nouns, verbs or adjectives, were selected if they were:

- related to the performance of tasks in a restricted number of occupations, and
- important to task description, for a significant proportion of the occupations in which they were used.

Thus nouns like activities, equipment and products, and verbs like make, operate, repair and supervise are not included since they refer to a wide variety of occupations. In addition, adjectives related to verbs are only included if they refer to occupations that are not referenced by the verbs themselves. For example, the adjectives basted, blown, detonated and engraved are omitted because the occupations to which each refers are already referenced by bastes, blow, detonates and engraving, respectively.

THE PURPOSE OF THIS PUBLICATION

In instances where two grammatical variants of a noun or a verb have been used in task descriptions (eg. illustrate and illustrating), and where all occupations referenced by one of the forms are also referenced by the other, then one variant has generally been omitted to reduce redundancy. Thus the variants cheeses, clock, disinfect, blows and illustrating are omitted because all of the occupations to which each variant refers are already referenced respectively by the variants cheese, clocks, disinfects, blow and illustrate.

Keywords are arranged in alphabetical order. Each keyword is followed by a list containing the code and principal title of every occupation where the keyword is used.

Each occupation appears as many times in this index as the number of different keywords used in the lead statements and task descriptions of the occupation.

The Use of the Index to Identify Occupation Codes

The Keyword Index to Occupation Definitions is not intended to be a coding document in its own right, but rather a guide to locating relevant occupation definitions. It should be used when the coding procedures described in the ASCO Expert Coding System: Occupation Level or the ASCO Manual Coding System: Occupation Level fail to assign a code. Codes from this index should not be applied without referring to the Structure and Group Definitions, the Occupation Definitions and the Coding Indexes, to ensure that the code is appropriate, even when there is only one occupation code shown under a particular keyword.

To use this index:

- 1) Identify all words in the response that characterise the occupation (eg. accountancy, buying, farm).
- 2) Look the words up in the keyword index and identify potential occupation codes (if a word is not listed in the index, try looking under variants of the word).
- 3) Consult the ASCO Occupation Definitions (ABS Cat. No. 1223.0), and compare the occupation definitions corresponding to the potential codes identified with all the task information available in the response. Reject any codes which do not match well.
- 4) If a good match has been found between an occupation definition and the information in the response, verify the accuracy of the code by checking against the range of occupation titles listed in the ASCO Coding Index: Numerical Order.
- 5) Assign the code if accurate.

Computer Searching

Users of ASCO who have access to an IBM or IBM compatible micro-computer will find it easier and faster to conduct searches for keywords on an electronic copy of the Occupation Definitions using standard search utilities. This approach has the added flexibility of allowing user defined keywords, which need not be whole words, but may be just character strings. The ASCO Occupation Definitions are available on floppy disk.
